Hughes Claims Handbill Contains Misrepresentations

By JIM CURTIS, Kernel Associate Editor

Lowell Hughes, former University football star and presently a senior in the UK College of Law, yesterday said a handbill being circulated about him is misrepresentative and "unfair to me and my family."

Hughes said the facts in the handbill concerning his working full time for the Department of Revenue are true, but the report failed to tell the whole truth.

A handbill has been circulated, built around records provided by State Treasurer Thomas Sevel, charging that Hughes had been a paid employee of the Department of Revenue for nearly three years.

Under the heading of "Is This Payroll Padding?" the handbill listed uninterrupted monthly payments to Hughes, beginning in June, 1960, and running through April, 1963.

The salary paid Hughes for the three years was itemized in the handbill by months and came to a total of $11,769.45.

The handbill also stated:

"L. T. Hughes is Lowell Hughes of Prestonsburg, Floyd County, son of J. T. Hughes, owner and operator of Hughes Motor Co., Cadillac dealer in Prestonsburg, a friend and supporter of the Combs Administration, and is the son-in-law of A. M. Howard of Howard Wholesale, Allen, Kentucky."

"The records of the University of Kentucky show that Lowell was a full-time law student during all that period set out, and the Department of Revenue had him listed on its payroll as field representative."

"How many of you students have had to work part-time and borrow from your relatives and hometown banks to go to college?"

"Maybe you could have qualified for a job like this had you lived in a governor's home town and your father was a Cadillac dealer and worth over $100,000. The Administration's good debt says he approves all of the Combs payrolls—the only thing he needs is to keep the Sales Tax on Food, Clothing, and Medicine, so they can continue the payroll padding. This is not an isolated case, just one of the many hundreds in the Governor's HOME county of Floyd."

Hughes explained that he had been working on an adjusted work schedule to make up for the 12 hours of classes he had been carrying during the spring and fall semesters. He said that it was possible for him to work full time and attend school full time and also work full time.

"All records show that I was a full-time law student during all that period set out, and the Department of Revenue had him listed on its payroll as field representative."

the offices of the Department of Revenue.

Hughes said he worked on a production basis, contacting taxpayers, in person, making audit reports on delinquent payments for the Department of Revenue.

"The report contains a false statement that I was not in school the full 12 months a year as the report listed. The report said I had been a full-time student for 12 full months. Actually I had been a student during the fall and spring semesters, and didn't attend summer school."

"So the report is false in that respect, considering that there are three three month periods in which I was working full time and not attending school."

Hughes is concerned about the damage this report and handbill, especially the way it was presented, will have on his future in the field of law.

In commenting on the handbill, Hughes said, "If these people are so proud of this piece of literature, I can't understand why those who provided the information for it prepared the handbill didn't have the courage to sign it."

Hughes went on to say he understood that the handbill was

Coed Finds Flying Fun

By JANIE GEISER
Kernel Feature Writer

Janet Russ has literally had her head in the clouds since she was 13. She has her pilot's license!

An 18 year old freshman from Syracuse, N. Y., Janet began flying when she was 13 but had to wait until she was 15 to solo and get her student license.

"You feel like you own the world when you're flying; there's no one to tell you what to do or when to do it," Janet said. "It's the greatest thrill I've ever experienced and flying is a challenge to anyone."

Janet's father, Dr. George Russ, a pediatrician in Syracuse, N. Y., is a pilot himself and has been flying since 1935. He has been a member of the National Aeronautics Association since 1945 and has been a member of the American Society of Flight Instructors since 1955.

Her father took the family flying when Janet was 12. "I was so excited then," she said. "One day I got over the shock of being up there, it was the most beautiful thing," she added. The next week found her eagerly awaiting her first flying lesson at a nearby airport.

Janet's mother is the only one in her family who doesn't have her pilot's license. "She likes life on the ground, and won't fly in anything less than a two-engine plane," Janet added.

The Russes have at least two planes all the time, "sometimes more." Her father owns an Apache plane and her brother, a junior in high school, recently got his license and his own plane. "I just fly whatever's left," Janet quipped.

Getting a pilot's license requires a great amount of work and time. The student must take flying lessons until his instructor thinks he is capable of handling the plane alone. A written test and a physical examination follow the lessons. Then the student must take a solo test. After he has passed all these tests, he will receive his student license. Janet has passed all these tests and has her student license.

Janet now has her private pilot's license and would like to work on her commercial and multi-engine ratings this summer.

She also hopes to try sky diving, falling, parachute jumping this summer when she and her family go to a special training school for such feats, in South Orange, Mass.

One of her best flying friends in New York is Mr. Harvey Sass, who taught her more code and a great deal about airplanes. She made her first landing in a 172 Cessna with him when she was 14. "He's been just wonderful to me, and we go flying together a lot when I'm home," Janet added.

She would like to be a pilot and go into flying professionally, but there are so many things I'd like to do. She is presently the only woman enrolled in the Air Force ROTC program. Janet joined it because AFROTC offered a flight training program, which she later learned women couldn't enter. "Maybe they'll change the regulations in the next few years," she added hopefully.

Her dreams are endless—she'll like to go to South America in the summer of '64 to study at the University of Mexico her junior year, and to organize a Flying Club with some of the pilots she knows in Lexington and at UK. "The University needs something like that, I think," she said.

Have you ever known anyone who wanted to raise buffaloes? Janet wanted to when she was 15. She wrote to her senator and representative, explaining her desire to exhibit the buffaloes for people around Syracuse to see, and told how she would feed and care for the animals on her family's 600 acre farm. "They wrote me a very nice letter but said they couldn't send the four buffaloes I wanted, not even one!"

If flying and a love of buffaloes aren't enough to occupy all her time Janet swims, loves all sports, plays the piano and the accordion, and trains and rides her two Thoroughbred race horses, an Arabian Palmino and a Chestnut mare. She also speaks Polish, Spanish understands a little Russian, and is active as president of her pledge class of Alpha Xi Delta sorority. You could say Janet Russ was a pretty busy, well as very interesting and charming person, if you would let her.

Patients Don't Phone
DES MOINES, Iowa (AP)—A veterinarian here says he has received more phone calls from patients than he can handle. He says he has to turn away many calls because he is too busy to answer them. He says he has to tell them to come in and see him.

"Do you get many long-distance calls from patients?" the customer asked.

"Very few," came the reply. "I'm a veterinarian."

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP)—The Rev. Patrick Bacon awoke a little late one morning, and knew he couldn't get to a convent in time for the Mass he conducts there daily.

He relates that he called the convent, tried to disguise his voice, and asked for the time of the Mass.

One of the sisters replied: "Whenever you get here, Father."

The four war years 1941-44 represented a period of catastrophe in the most terrible year in history. I feel the nearly superhuman task of rebuilding governments, economies and industries. Mountains of rubble marked great cities as monuments to the efficiency of aerial bombardment. The Gestapo and other terror organizations had created distrust and hatred. Currencies were worthless, in-

Many European countries, incapable of helping themselves, turned in all directions seeking help. The Soviet Union had suffered severely from the war, but its dedicated Communist leaders recognized the opportunity for expansion of Communist influence. Under the guise of benevolence, the Soviets stripped many countries of their few assets, established governments controlled by Moscow and enforced civil controls which left the population totally subservient to Communist masters.

Slowly but relentlessly relations slipped behind an ideological veil which has become the Iron Curtain. Today, I believe, Hungary, Rumania, Czechoslovakia and Albania were caught in the Communist domination.

refugees and displaced persons who recognized the ultimate design of communism began to long for that part of Germany controlled by the United States, Great Britain and standing of the world. The United States had recklessly disclosed the greatest armed force ever created and was regaining its economy and national attitude to a prosperous era of peace.

Once the danger was recognized, the free nations moved to stop a threat to mankind which could be as hideous as that envisaged by the leaders of the Axis powers so recently defeated. Economic aid began to flow into Germany and other countries not yet gobbled up by the Kremlin's power. Military alliances were formed, some to include former enemies as allies, and the great powers of the free world began to rebuild their armed forces around the awe some deterrent of the atomic bomb.

Led by West Germany's brilliant economic recovery, the free nations of Europe moved more surely and firmly as partners in the battle against communism. NATO became a tangible, impressive military force capable of stopping armed aggression.

Unable to achieve quick political victories, the Communist now turned to instigation of small civil wars which were to culminate in Korea into a conflict that threatened to erupt into another World War. Here the free world established a line beyond which the Communist would not be permitted to advance.

Today, eighteen years after the world turned hopefully toward the promise of peace, a very real war continues. This war could at any time shift from the battle for men's minds to one of military conflict with the terrifying possibility of the destruction of civilization.

Our generation must face a future filled with political tensions, international intrigue and the ominous shadow of nuclear destruction. We have the responsibility of maintaining the tenuous peace attained on V-E Day and fought for during the ensuing years.

At 1:30 p.m. May 1, 1963, on the date I was observed entering the library through the "Green Door," I said that considerations of scientific trust in human nature had provided to the extent that we can gain access our research projects through our then well-known to the standards of research knowledge.

The University of Kentucky Athletics Association has voted to continue the status quo regarding integration of athletic teams, at least for the present. The "status quo" actually means no Negro athletes in UK sports. At a meeting of the association, which is made up of members of the faculty, of the athletics department, trustees and administrative officers of the University, the whole matter was given careful consideration and the members conscientiously decided what they felt was in the best interests of the University.

But is integration of athletics really a matter that should address itself to the UK Athletics Association?

But it still appears to us that it is a very different matter of whom to ask for the "right" physics, essentially in the sense of the last paragraph. In the end, we may reason that we should not put any value in our own, with any established policy, but in the University. Finally, it is something that President Frank G. Meyer should put on his agenda for the next year.

As a student of Transylvania and as a member of the Kernel and an observer of the recent University Student Congress (also), I would like to comment on the situation.

As an outside observer, it seems to me that Mr. Lane has ulterior motives in suddenly demanding the presence of a quorum for the last meetings, since most of the Student Congress meetings have been conducted without a quorum.

I personally am for Mr. Breathitt, but I think it is deplorable that a student would use his position of trust to forward Mr. Breathitt's or any other candidate's campaign for public office.

I feel that Mr. Lane has violated the honor of his office and I am certain that if a similar situation existed here at Transylvania, neither the administration nor the students would allow such a person to remain in office.

participate in all University events, if they can attend classes, eat in the cafeterias, study in the library and participate in all University activities, then there can be no sound reason why they should not be permitted to take part in athletic events under the University program. If a Negro student wishes to participate as a debater or to visit some other school in behalf of the University's programs no objection is raised. The members of the race who show prowess in some form of athletics also should be permitted to represent the University.

The complete acceptance of this idea now has been delayed beyond the time that the University might recruit Negro athletes. The best ones already have been signed up by other Kentucky colleges or universities or have cast their lot with schools in other states. Still under this plan, intended to say, he said to have been put off a year or two. As to the more not-eligible under NCAA rules this means that it will be three years before Negro players would be playing varsity ballies. Surely, within that time the full integration program will have been carried out in enough Southern and Southern border states to make Kentucky's position not viable for the time period that Kentucky is greatly behind the North in the integration of its basketball and football.

It is a method, could be called "bottom-up", of the power of the administration, at the head of the University. It was necessary to be the carving out of a policy that has been approved by the trustees, faculty and most supporters of the University for many years.

Old South

Each Spring Kappa Alpha Order holds an "Old South Weekend" to honor and salute its founder, Robert E. Lee. There are 83 KA chapters (all south of the Mason-Dixon line), and each one holds a weekend similar to the one held at the University by the local chapter.

The weekend included, a Sharecroppers' Ball last Friday night, the Secession Parade Saturday afternoon, the traditional Old South Ball Saturday night and ended with a jam session and concert Sunday afternoon.

Penny Hertelendy is congratulated for being chosen KA Rose for 1963-64 by Harry Lee Waterfield as Linda Tobin looks on.

Tipins

By Mike Smith

Once upon a time, not too long ago, there was a small colt—one destined to become a star in the not too distant future. After all, this little fellow had the pedigree of a real champion.

This small colt grew rapidly and soon began for him what was to become a glorious racing career.

But fame did not come easy. As a two-year-old his record was only slightly better than mediocre although he faced the toughest competition available. It was the following season—when he made his three-year-old debut—that things began to change.

He won as a three-year-old. In fact he was practically unbeatable. However, he got very little publicity. Yes, every time his name appeared in the sports page it was earned because another pair of horses were stealing the whole show.

It wasn't until a week before the Kentucky Derby that this horse really got into the act even though he hadn't lost a race all season. But when Swaps went off and left the field at Churchill Downs that day he made a lot of people forget about the power of Nashua and Summer Tan.

A week later Swaps proved he was real. When the gates flew open for that 91st Derby he flew out and the remaining three Nashua sport in a vain attempt to catch up.

Swaps got his publicity and from here went on to become a truly outstanding runner. Maybe not great, but truly outstanding.

As every sports enthusiast knows by now, Chateaugay, a son of Swaps, repeated what his dad did in 1955. He won the Kentucky Derby and proved the experts wrong.

Swaps must have done some talking to his son before the big race. So incredible is the similarity that even the times of 2:01.4 were the same. The only difference was Chateaugay's coming from behind while Swaps set the pace.

Now the similarity will end. Whereas Chateaugay may never live up to the record of his sire, he will have the opportunity to even better it.

Following the '55 Derby Swaps was sent to Chicago and not given a crack at the Preakness and Belmont Stakes (Last two legs of the triple crown).

Swaps later went West and became one of the top Derby winners to beat another when he won over Detroit in 1954. But Swaps failed in his next try with Nashua—although injury was claimed after losing the match race and soon Swaps was retired.

Chateaugay can move ahead of Swaps with a Preakness win, but what a job that will be. Things were tough enough for him in the Derby and they shouldn't be any easier at Pimlico.

His old friends, Candy Spots and Never Bend will be there along with stretch runners Bonjour and On My Honor. No doubt there will be others. Some who missed the Derby may include Get Around and Lemon Twist.

At any rate, chances are Chateaugay won't be the favorite. The Preakness distance is a sixteenth of a mile shorter than the Derby and it was at the final sixteenth pole at Churchill Downs that he finally collared Never Bend.

With No Robbery out of action and Gray Pet a doubtful Preakness starter, Never Bend may be allowed to set his own pace. And if Candy Spots is back in form there could certainly be trouble.

So Chateaugay will probably go to the post ranked about third choice, though not at the nine-to-one odds he had in Louisville. Such was approximately the case of Decidedly last year and Venetian Way in 1960. Neither one finished in the money at Baltimore after having won the Kentucky Derby.

But it must be remembered that Chateaugay has not lost since becoming a three-year-old. In fact he may still be improving. If this should turn out to be true? Well then, watch out.

But Colo. Mines Won The Game

By LONDON KELLEY

GOLDEN, Colo. (AP)—Playing football for fun is just fine. But sometimes Coach Fritz Brennecke and his Colorado Mines players wonder if nearly every college football game is like this.

Take the trip to Golden for a college game with Colorado State College. The big winner is the Mines' locker room where it is a long time before the game starts.

When the bus began backing into side roads, the driver asked Brennecke he knew the way. Just wanted to avoid being stopped at a state inspection station.

When the bus pulled into the stadium, Brennecke asked the driver if he knew the way. Just wanted to avoid being stopped at a state inspection station.

Brennecke said the last time he'd forgotten to pick up the traveling money.

Apple-less, the Mines suited up. Everyone wore white jerseys except Tom Bernard, wearing tetching blue. He'd grabbed the wrong jersey from his locker. He borrowed a white jersey from the opposition.

During the game Brennecke communicated with an assistant coach as spotter. But not with the usual telephone line to the press box. Assistant Joe Daver climbed to the top of a light pole and wrote his observations on scraps of paper, dropping them to an injured Mines player, who hobbled on crutches between pole and bench.

Between halves the Mines band performed a "Mines March" with the band leader in the center. When they came back to the field, the band leader was the only one who had not been hit. The band leader was the only one who had not been hit.

The Mines' record is 14-7.

Hockey Draws Well

DENVER (AP)—Hockey attendance at the University of Denver averaged 4,721 per game for 23 games in the 1962-63 season, the second highest mark in the arena's history. The record is 4,914 per game, set in 1961-62 when Denver won the NCAA championship.

Small But Profitable

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—The National A.A.U. basketball tournament, held in 1962 every year but one, had its smallest field in 1962 since the sport's early days, with only 12 teams entered. But officials said the tournament turned a profit of $100,000 and may be held here again in 1964.

SUKY Backs Up Many Athletic Events

By JUDY LAUGHLIN, Kernel Feature Writer

Ever wonder where all the hundreds and hundreds of little blue and white shakers you use to cheer with at the games come from? ... or the many posters advertising games and rallies that cover our campus come from? ... or the torches used in parades that light the streets during a log game come from?

These are the results of many hours of work by a small number of enthusiastic students—SUKY.

SUKY, which stands for Student Union of Kentucky, is a student pep organization. The members of the SUKY Circle and those working for membership and their sweeties sponsor all the pep rallies and torch parades and organize the out-cries when the teams play away.

They also sponsor the cheerleaders, drum corps and election and Larkins cheerleader manager and coach, Jeanne Holmes. This year's coach is the first student to become manager; in the past an older person has always been the adviser.

SUKY also furnishes the chairman and two members of the Homecoming Steering Committee which take charge of all arrangements on the Homecoming parade, queen contest, and the half-time ceremonies.

To become a member of SUKY a student is required to have a 2.0 standing with the University and the willingness to work and to generate enthusiasm. Usually tryouts for membership are held in the fall and in the spring.

How can this organization be so successful?

Well, it's mostly because of the work of the members. The members are: Carl Patrick, president; Shelley Dole, secretary; Linda Compton, treasurer; and Jimmie Allen, corresponding secretary. Their constitution is in the process of being revised.

"Evidently these people who prepared the handbill think I did wrong by working my way through college and that you (the public) should hold it against me."

"They failed to mention how many other students here at the University have and are working their way through school."

"They have taken the facts out of context and are going to let the people draw their own conclusions from the part they see."

"I regret having to give the handbill even a comment. However, as is so often the case, when you are dealing with the type of people such as the one connected with this issue (the handbill), I feel it is necessary to point out facts which they have conveniently ignored or failed to state."

Hughes said that he had been told that the handbill was a "good idea" and that it was "a good idea" to "point out" the "facts" of his life.
